We Do Not UNDERSTAND

why some people will be induced to buy mixed paints that are only claimed to be composed wholly of lead and zinc and pure linseed oil, when this claim is only supported by the simple statement of the seller and not sustained by any guarantee of purity nor chemical analysis. Ask them if they will do as Rains does—he stands ready to deposit in bank a sufficient sum of money to pay the cost of analysis by any first class chemist whose analysis fails to verify the absolute purity of his paint. Try them by this test and see if they really believe the paint they offer to sell you is pure. The public has been deceived too much and too often on mixed paints. Our paint costs you no more than other dealers ask you for adulterated and short measure gallons.

WEDDING BELLS.

Lloyd Webster.

At the home of Mr. Thomas Webster on the evening of Saturday, the 19th, Mr. Judd Lloyd and Miss Fannie Webster were united in marriage, the Rev. Mr. Stella officiating. The bride, with her sister Mrs. N. P. Yeatman of Nashville, was spending the summer with their brother, Mr. Tom Webster. She is a most excellent representative of an old and highly connected family. Her gracious manner, intelligence and beauty made her annual visits to her old home an event of great pleasure to her numerous friends. The groom, a gentleman of splendid address and superior business ability, resides in Detroit, Mich., but spent much of his time South looking after business interests. Owing to recent family bereavement the marriage was a quiet one, only a few of the immediate relatives being present.

Judge Robert B. Williams of Lawrenceburg and Miss Gertrude E. Thomas of Cincinnati, were married in the Maxwell House parlors in Nashville on Thursday afternoon of last week. Judge Williams, formerly Judge of this circuit, is well known and well liked, and has very many friends who will be glad to extend their congratulations.

The marriage of Mr. J. R. Walston, of this city, and Miss Cora L. Barnett, of Henderson, Ky., is announced to take Nov. 15.
